PREFACE.

THE object of the following Work, is to imprint on the memory of Youth, by pleasing and striking images, the sacred and important truths of holy writ.

The mode of instruction by Hieroglyphics originated with the ancient Egyptian priests and philosophers; but their motive for using it was widely different from ours; not to diffuse instruction, but to confine it to a select few, was their object: ours, on the contrary, is to engage the attention, by striking the eye, and to make the lesson delightful as well as profitable.

We assert no claim to originality of design, but if we are found to have improved on former plans, we do not doubt that we shall receive encouragement from Parents and Guardians, and from other persons to whom may be entrusted the highly-important and pleasing task of bringing up children.

The utmost attention has been paid, in the compilation of this work, to select such passages for illustration and embellishment, as contained truths the most obvious and important, or historical facts the most interesting. These passages will, therefore, form the most useful lessons to which the minds of children can possibly be directed.

The correct reading of each emblematical verse will be found at the bottom of every page, where the hieroglyphical figures are printed in italics.

To the candour and liberality of the public, this work is submitted; and as the intention of the Compilers have been to smooth and embellish the path to Divine knowledge, they earnestly implore the blessings of Almighty God on all those who are called to assist the progress of youth, towards those eternal mansions of bliss, where sits enthroned Wisdom, Goodness, and Power, for ever and ever.

THE LIFE OF OUR BLESSED LORD AND SAVIOUR
JESUS CHRIST.

IN the days of Herod, King of Judea, Cæsar-Augustus, the Roman Emperor, ordered that all the Jews should go to be taxed, each one to their native city; so Joseph and his espoused wife, Mary, went up to Bethlehem, they being of the royal line of David.

And while they were there she brought forth her first-born son, and laid him in a manger, there being no room in the inn.

Now when Jesus was born, Herod the king was troubled concerning him, for fear he should reign in his stead, not understanding the prophecies concerning him; he, therefore, sent several wise men to learn where he was, thinking to kill him; but they, being warned of God, in a dream, returned to their city another way.

Mean time the tyrant Herod was waiting for their return, an angel appeared to Joseph, saying, "Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go thou into Egypt, for Herod seeketh to kill him." Joseph accordingly arose, and did as the angel commanded him that very night.

King Herod being enraged to think that he could not destroy him, ordered that all the infants under two years old, should be slain! for which inhuman barbarity God smote him with an incurable disease, and he expired in great agony.

After the death of Herod, the Lord sent an angel unto Joseph, to bid him return to the land of Israel, which he immediately obeyed, and dwelt in Nazareth.

After these things, Jesus was baptized in the wilderness by John, when the heavens opened, and a voice said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Although Jesus was so great and glorious a person, he was a pattern of humility and condescension. Far from seeking the society of the rich and noble, he loved to converse with the aged and miserable; not only would he converse with the venerable but he did not disclaim even little children. Some pious parents once brought their infants, whom he took in his arms and blessed them.

Among other acts, which no other than Divine love and power could accomplish, were,

1. He turned water into wine at the marriage in Cana.
2. The miraculous draught of fishes in the Sea of Galilee.
3. His curing Peter's wife's mother of a fever, by touching her hand.
4. His casting out evil spirits with his word, and healing those that were sick at Capernaum.
5. His healing all manner of sickness, diseases, and torments, and those which were possessed of devils, and all those that were lunatic, or had the palsy, throughout all Galilee. 6. His curing a leper at the same place with his hand. 7. His healing a paralytic at Capernaum. 8 His healing a man with a withered hand on the Sabbath-day. 9. His healing of a leper, by only touching him with his hand. 10. His curing the Centurion's servant at Capernaum, of a dropsy, by his word only, without seeing him. 11. His raising to life the widow's son of Nain. 12. His driving a legion of devils out of a man, at Gargasenes. 13. A woman who had an issue of blood twelve years, was healed by touching his garment. 14. He restored the daughter of Jairus, the ruler of the synagogue, to life. 15. He restored two blind men to sight, by touching their eyes. 16. He drives a dumb spirit out of a man at Capernaum. 17. He feeds five thousand people with two loaves and two fishes. 18. He walks upon the sea, when his apostles thinking it was a spirit were afraid, and to convince them, he called Peter to him, who came to him, and as he was walking, he began to sink, but Jesus caught hold of him, when a tempest arose, but on his coming into the ship, it immediately ceased at his command. 19. He cast a devil out of a woman of Canaan. 20. He cured one who was deaf and dumb at Galilee. 21. He healed an impotent man at the pool of Bethsada, who had an infirmity thirty-eight years.

22. He raises Lazarus from the dead. 23.

He heals a blind man at Bethsaida. Besides a great number of other miracles, which are recorded by the Evangelists.

The people followed Jesus in great multitudes, to listen to the divine instructions which fell from his gracious lips. Being in the country of Cesarea Philippi, our Saviour left the throng in the plain, and, accompanied with Peter, James, and John, ascended an exceeding high mountain. In this solitude, while Jesus was praying with these three disciples, he was transfigured; his face became radiant and dazzling, for it shone like the sun in its meridian clearness. At the same time his garment acquired a snowy whiteness, far beyond any thing human art could produce; a whiteness bright as the light, and sweetly refulgent, but in a degree inferior to the radiance of his countenance.

Thus as it were, for an instant, the Son of God, during his state of humiliation, was irradiated with heavenly glories; and to heighten the grandeur and solemnity of the scene, Moses, the great lawgiver of Israel, and Elijah, a zealous defender of the laws, appeared in the beauties of immortality, the robes in which the inhabitants of the heavenly Canaan are adorned. At beholding the illustrious sight, the disciples were greatly amazed; and Peter, in his habitual forwardness, uttered the exclamation—"Master, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias."

Jesus intending to go to Jerusalem, sent his disciples to fetch a young colt, on which he condescended to ride towards the city; and a great multitude being assembled to see him, they were so impressed with wonder and gratitude for the compassionate works he had done among them that they strewed palm branches in his way, crying, "Hosanna to the Son of David, blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

The time of the passover being come, Jesus sent two of his disciples to make ready, which being done, he sat down with them to eat the passover. And while they were eating, Jesus took bread and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying, "Take, eat; this is my body, which is broken for you; this do in remembrance of me." And he also took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, "Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." At the same time he gave his disciples a pattern of humility, by washing their feet and wiping them with a towel wherewith he was girded, as a pattern to all who should call themselves Christians. At this Supper he foretold his Disciples that Judas should betray him; at which they were exceding sorrowful. But so it happened, for on going to Mount Olivet, and while yet praying to his heavenly Father that the Cup of Misery might pass from him, and enduring such agonies for the sake of his people, that he sweat great drops of blood, Judas, the apostate Judas, came up to him with a great multitude, and cried—"Hail, Master," and kissed him.—Upon this, Jesus surrendered himself into their hands, who bound him, and took him before the Pharisees and High Priests, who were assembled together to form his accusation, and suborn witnesses against him.

The next morning, after Jesus was examined by Caiphas, the Jews led him to Pontius Pilate, and accused him of perverting the nation, of calling himself a king, and of forbidding to pay tribute to Cæsar. But Pilate finding no fault in him, did all he could to save him from the malice of the Jews; and it being a custom to release a malefactor on occasion of their great feast, he proposed to chastise him and let him go; but they cried out, Crucify him! Crucify him! Whereupon Pilate, seeing he could not prevail, took water and washed his hands, saying, "I am clear of the blood of this innocent man, see ye to it," upon which the Jews cried out, "His Blood be upon us and on our Children." Then Pilate delivered him to the Jews to be crucified.

Then the soldiers cruelly scourged him with rods, put a robe on him, and a crown of thorns upon his head, mocked him, spit on him, smote him, and after offering him other indignities, carried him to a place called Golgotha, where they crucified him between two thieves, in the sight of his mother, Mary Magdalene, &c.

When three days and three nights had elapsed, our Saviour arose from the dead, and appeared to Mary Magdalene, then to Peter and John, then to the eleven, and after that to above five hundred brethren at once. And having remained on earth forty days, and told his disciples of the things appertaining to the kingdom of God, he assembled them on mount Olivet, and there assured them that in a short time they should receive the Holy Ghost, and be witnesses to him, unto the uttermost parts of the earth. Soon after this, a cloud received him out of their sight.

LIVES OF THE EVANGELISTS.

ST. MATTHEW.

ST. MATTHEW, called also Levi, though a Roman officer, was a true Hebrew, and probably a Ga-lilean. His trade was that of a publican, or tax-gatherer to the Romans, an office detested by the generality of the Jews on two accounts; first, because having farmed the custom of the Romans, they used every method of oppression to pay their rents to the Romans; secondly, because they demanded of the Jews, who considered themselves as a free people, having received that privilege from God himself. And hence they had a common proverb among them, "Take not a wife out of that family in which there is a publican, for they are all publicans."

Our blessed Saviour having cured a person long afflicted with the palsy, retired out of Capernaum, to walk by the sea-side, where he taught the people that flocked after him.

Here he saw Matthew sitting in his office, and called him to follow him. The man was rich, had a large and profitable employment, was a wise and prudent person, and doubtless understood what would be his loss to comply with the call of Jesus. He was not ignorant that he must exchange wealth for poverty, a custom-house for a prison, and rich and powerful masters for a naked and despised Saviour. But he overlooked all these considerations, left all his interest and relations to become our Lord's disciple, and to embrace a more spiritual way of life.

After St. Matthew's election to the apostleship, he continued with the rest till the ascension of his great and beloved Master. He suffered martyrdom at a city of Ethiopia, called Naddabar.

ST. MARK.

THIS apostle was descended from Jewish parents, and of the tribe of Levi. Nor was it uncommon among the Jews to change their names on some remarkable revolution or accident of life, or when they intended to travel into any of the European provinces of the Roman empire.

Eusebius tells us, that St. Mark was sent into Egypt by St. Peter to preach the gospel, and accordingly planted a church in Alexandria, the metropolis of it: and his success was so very remarkable that he converted multitudes both of men and women: persuading them not only to embrace the Christian religion, but also a life of more than ordinary strictness.

St. Mark did not confine himself to Alexandria, and the oriental parts of Egypt, but removed westward to Lybia, passing through the countries of Marmacia, Pentapolis, and others adjacent, where, though the people were both barbarous in their manners, and idolatrous in their worship, yet by his preaching and miracles he prevailed on them to embrace the tenets of the gospel; nor did he leave them till he had confirmed them in the faith.

After this long tour he returned to Alexandria, where he preached the gospel with the greatest success. But his enemies were determined to put a stop to his efforts; and he was seized, bound, and cast into prison.

He suffered martyrdom on the 25th of April, but the year is not absolutely known: the most probable opinion, however, is that it happened about the end of Nero's reign.

ST. LUKE.

THIS disciple of the blessed Jesus was born at Antioch, the metropolis of Syria. He was a Jewish proselyte; but at what time he became a Christian is uncertain. It is the opinion of some, from the introduction of his gospel, that he had the facts from the reports of others, who were eye-witnesses, and suppose him to have been converted by St. Paul : and that he learned the history of his gospel from the conversation of that apostle, and wrote it under his direction ; and that when St. Paul, in one of his epistles, says, according to my gospel, he means this of St. Luke, which he styled his, from the great share he had in the composition of it.

A different opinion has been expressed to this ; but whichever is correct, St. Luke became the inseparable companion of St. Paul in all his travels, and his constant fellow-labourer in the work of the ministry. This endeared him to that apostle, who seems delighted in owning him for his fellow-labourer, and calling him, the beloved physician, and the brother whose praise is in the gospel.

As an historian he was faithful in his relations, and elegant in his writings, as a minister, careful and diligent for the good of souls ; as a Christian devout and pious : and to crown all the rest, laid down his life in testimony of the gospel he had both preached and published to the world.

ST. JOHN.

ST. JOHN was by much the youngest of the apostles, yet he was admitted into as great a share of his Master's confidence as any of them. There are no records of the time and place of his birth; but it appears that after spending several years at Ephesus, he was accused to Domitian, who had begun a persecution against the Christians. The tyrant bound him and sent him to Rome, where he met with the treatment that he might have expected from so barbarous a prince, being thrown into a cauldron of boiling oil. But the Almighty, who reserved him for further service in the vineyard of his Son, restrained the heat, as he did in the fiery furnace of old, and delivered him from this seemingly unavoidable destruction. And surely one would have thought that so miraculous a deliverance should have been sufficient to have persuaded any rational man, that the religion he taught was from God, and that he was protected from danger by the hand of Omnipotence. He ordered St. John to be transported to a desolate island in the Archipelago, named Patmos, where he continued for several years. St. John continued to labour in the vineyard of his great Master, until death put a period to all his toils and sufferings; which happened in the beginning of Trajan's reign, in the ninety-eighth year of his age; and, according to Eusebius, his remains were buried near Ephesus.
